

RELIEF LIMIT IS APPROVED
BY COMMITTEE

County Welfare Leaders' Attacks Fail to Alter Situation at Hearing

MEASURE IS AMENDED

To Permit Counties to Borrow from State

Columbus, O., June 13.—(AP)—Unnathed by a bitter, raking fire on county welfare workers, a new $6,500,000 relief program headed today for the battle lines of the approaching session of the legislature.

A 12-0 vote of the house finance committee sent the drastic measure, which would restrict average monthly allowances for relief families to within an $8-$12 range, out for final approval. Both houses were expected to return Tuesday to fight over it.

The state relief commission under the six-month measure would repeal the expenditure by counties of Carey poor relief bond money and could refuse grants to counties deemed to have sufficient Carey funds to meet their needs. Relief commission records show more than a score have this.

A committee amendment to the measure would enable counties borrowing relief funds from the state to share in its benefits before repaying the loans. The commission could have authority to extend the deadline for repaying loans to Sept.
if the county requesting this had arranged to submit a Carey bond proposal to the voters.

Despite a provision permitting counties to exceed the average rante restriction in individual cases, welfare leaders raked the bill for and aft.

culated to bring adjournment next up conference consideration of the tax bill and the deficiency appropriation bill carrying $1,425,000,000 for relief. These have been on the administration's "must" list since early in this session.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL
HELD FOR KILLING

ADmits STABBING UNCLE WHO
"BAWLED HER OUT"

Indianapolis, June 13.—(AP)— Fourteen-year-old Betty Raye Cole, alleged slayer of her uncle, Andrew J. Farran, lay sobbing in her home today as authorities pondered her case.

Sheiff Otto Ray, who termed the slaying "an accident," said the high school freshman admitted stabbing her uncle to death with a 10-cent paring knife when he "bawled her out and grabbed her."

Prosecutor Herbert Spencer said,
"At the present I won't slate Betty for anything."

Betty, according to Spencer, stated in her admission, "Uncle Joe was always good to me; but he drank some, and when he was drinking he got mean."

The Cole home has been an unhappy one for two years. The trouble started when Betty's father disappeared in 1934, according to Spencer. Mrs. Cole has been seriously ill for sometime. Just Thursday she was brought home, still in near the spot where the stabbing occurred. But even today she did not know Farran, her brother, was dead. Relatives were afraid the shock would be too much.

Executive Says "We Are Not Going to Get Tangled Up" in Possible European War and Expresses Belief in "Democracy in Opportunity"

By D. HAROLD OLIVER.

Fort Worth, Tex., June 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt turned eastward on his 4,000 mile western trip today after frankly stating his views on some of the live national and international questions of the day before ceremonial-celebrating Texas and Arkansas.

He planned to leave this afternoon for Vincennes, Ind., where tomorrow morning he will deliver the third major address of his tour in dedicating a monument to Geo.
Rogers Clark, northwest revolutionary war hero. He spent the night here at the nearby home of his son, Elliott.

After a hard-hitting anti-monopoly speech in the Dallas Cotton Bowl stadium, where his visible audience was estimated at 50,000, he told a downtown hotel luncheon in his honor that foreign nations that "think of armament and war" could expect nothing but "moral help" from the United States in settling their difficulties.

"We are not going to get tangled up in their troubles in the days to come," he said.

Previously, in the stadium, he called for "democracy in opportunity" as well as in government in stating "chisellers" in business must go.

The very nature of free government, he said, demanded that there "must be a line of defense held by the yeomanry of business and industry and agriculture," not the "generalissimos."

Mrs. Roosevelt shared the ova-tions the President received in Dallas.

More than a hundred automobiles were in line in the drive through applauding lanes to Fort Worth where a thunder-shower sent hundreds to cover and drenched thousands who refused to pass up an opportunity to see the first democratic chief executive ever to visit the Lone Star state.

MURDER CONSPIRACY FAILS
WHEN G-MEN TOLD OF IT.

Detroit, June 13.—(AP)—A Highland Park newspaper publisher said today he believed the Black Legion abandoned a plot to kill him because its secrets were exposed to government agents.

The warrants, issued yesterday, accused 27 alleged members of the terrorist society of conspiring to kill Arthur L. Kingsley, publisher of the Highland Barker, and William W. Voisine, village president of down-river Ecorse.

Kingsley said a man told him two years ago that he had been forced to join the Black Legion at the point of a gun, and revealed details of the fearsome ritual. He said he advised him to tell his story to the Federal Bureau of investigation.

Later, Kingsley said his informant told him he had warned Black Legion officers he had disclosed their secrets to government agents.

Tea is Planted to Fool Dry Agents

And It Does, According to Story Told by Cincinnati Night Club Proprietor.

Columbus, O., June 13.—(AP)—
Whether or not its enforcement division inspectors could tell the difference between whisky and orange pekee tea was the question before the state board of liquor control today.

George C. Williams of Cincinnati said at least four of them couldn't.
He described himself as "the best chef in this country." He invited board members to be his guests and confirm the assertion.

Williams, who was discharged last year as supervisor of foods for the State Welfare Department, was up before the board late yesterday for a hearing on charges by the four agents that he served whisky in his New Deal Democratic club.

THIEF IS CAPTURED AND REWARD ASKED

SLEUTH SAYS HE WILL TURN OVER CAPTIVE FOR $500.

Cincinnati, O., June 13.—(AP)—A Kentucky chief of police who captured a former convict accused of a $9,735 jewel theft and recovered the gems and a $900 automobile demanded a $500 reward today for the return of jewels and the prisoner to Cincinnati.

Chief of Police Everette E. Jones of Princeton, Ky., recovered the jewels last night and captured Jas.
Crabtree, a houseman at the home of Frank J. Ballman, an investment broker, who signed a warrant charging Crabtree with the theft.

He had informed Mrs. Ballman late Friday night that "if the reward is sufficient I believe I can locate Crabtree by morning." Mrs.
Ballman and Cincinnati Detective
Chief Emmett D. Kirgan said
Jones asked for a $500 reward.
Kirgan said Crabtree was captured at 9 p. m., before the reward inquiry was made.

LEGISLATURE'S COST
REDUCED BY DAVEY

$64,700 APPROPRIATION IS VE-TOED BY GOVERNOR

Columbus, O., June 13.—(AP)— Veto by Gov. Martin L. Davey of a bill appropriating $64,700 for expenses of the Ohio general assembly caused today a sharp curtain-ment in the personnel of the house and senate working forces.

Fred Elsass, clerk of the house, laid off 75 employees and said he would have to carry on the work with six or ten employees. He notified those dismissed temporarily that they could work and take a chance that the legislature might reimburse them later.

Senate Clerk Dwight Matchette said he would have to cut his payroll 50 per cent. He said legislative committees would be able to operate for four or five weeks on present funds.

SUSPICIOUS DEATHS IN EAST

"Thoroughgoing Investigation" Covering Several Years Ordered by Massachusetts Justice.

Springfield, Mass., June 13.—(AP)—
A trial justice urged an investigation today of nearly 50 "suspicious" deaths in three thickly-populated, mill-town communities near here.

While state officials scanned insurance records of three recent victims of poisoning, trial justice George B. Haas of Ludlow called for a "thoroughgoing investigation"— not only of these present cases, but those over a course of years.

"There have been between 35 and 50 suspicious deaths in Ludlow, Chicopee and the Indian Orchard section of Springfield," declared Judge Haas.

"By suspicious," he continued,
"I mean many of them were insured by outsiders for amounts they, themselves, would have been unable to carry."

Cleveland, O., June 13.—(AP)—Under new and younger leadership, the Republicans began the groundwork today for a two-fisted, no-quarter campaign to displace the New Deal.

While Gov. Alf M. Landon and Col. Frank Knox prepared to dis-to the rank and file in all states the military message of its unanimous convention.

FARM BELT INDEPENDENTS SHOW DISSATISFACTION WITH G. O. P. PLATFORM AND LEAN TOWARD NEW DEAL.

Some hazards to harmony began to arise with dissatisfaction among certain western independents as they reflected over the platform. Senator William E. Borah, who had pretty much his way in the policy declarations only to have Landon later proclaim some personal planks, including monetary views, opposed by the Idahoan, withheld any pledge of support.

Senator Nye (R., N. D.) left Cleveland saying the platform had more chance to draw "reactionary support in the east than to regain" western progressives.

In Washington, Senator Norris (R-Neb.) said "reactionaries are in control" and predicted the re-election of President Roosevelt. He already had been given up by many Republican leaders after his support of Roosevelt in 1932.

In contrast with these statements was a flood of laudatory comment from party members. Herbert Hoover announced that "the ticket

Elected chairman of the Republican national committee by Landon's request, John Hamilton—his cam-

CHINA IN CIVIL WAR
OVER JAP INVASION

NORTH AND SOUTH UNABLE TO PRESENT UNITED FRONT

By The Associated Press
The central government of China increased its military preparations today as civilians in both North and South China demonstrated against Japan.

The Nanking government recruited more men into the national army as a threat to South China which, last week, sent troops northward into Hunan Province.

In Peiping, 3,000 students marched through the streets shouting epithets against Japan; in Canton, the southern capital, 100,000 civilians, shepherded by soldiers, marched in a similar demonstration.

Since the Cantonese had withdrawn their armies slightly from the farthest north point of advance and since the central government forces apparently have made no move to attack the southerners, observers leaned to the opinion that the danger of civil war was fading but that civilian demonstrations would be used to force the Nanking government to strengthen its opposition to Japanese encroachments in the north.

COP IN UNIFORM DIRECTS TRAFFIC

When watchmen with flags were unable to prevent some motorists from racing past the detour point at Columbus Avenue and Elm street, Saturday, it was found necessary to station a policeman in uniform at the point, with orders to arrest all offenders who ran past him and into the zone of work, where they would be forced to halt on account of the concrete mixer in the middle of the road.

There was a noticeable change in the attitude of motorists when a policeman in uniform was encountered, and little difficulty resulted.

From Elm street to the corporation line one-way traffic is necessary at the present time.

NORMAL WHEAT YIELD IS SEEN

A wheat yield in Fayette county that will be around normal, is the present outlook, according to observers, the opinion being expressed that the dry weather of recent weeks caused no damage of consequence in most sections of the county.

The straw will not be as long as it would have been had rainfall been normal, but it is believed that the wheat will fill good, and that the grain will be of good quality.

Wheat cutting within the next two weeks is a probability, with most of it being ready for the binder by the first week in July.

FRANCE TO REJECT PROPOSAL TO REORGANIZE LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN REGIONAL GROUP

"Destructive to Collective Security" Is Tip from Authoritative Sources

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

Paris, June 13.—(P)—France will reject a British proposal to reorganize League of Nations members into regional groups, authoritative sources declared today as "destructive to the entire structure of collective security."

Informed sources called the suggestion, reported to have been made orally by Sir George Clark, British Ambassador to Paris, to Premier Leon Blum, "impossible" because of the League "districts" proposed.

The British plan was reported to have advanced two ideas:

1. Cancellation of sanctions against Italy on the ground the war penalties failed to halt the conquest of Ethiopia.

2. Revision of the League covenant, with particular emphasis on article 16 which provides obligatory application of sanctions by all members when voted.

The French, sources close to the foreign office said, found little fault with the first suggestion but they could not accept the second.

The regional sanctions groups which would get set up in the covenant revision drew French objections, it was said, because the suggestions created these responsibilities:

Great Britain would guarantee assistance only to France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

France, already tied to four nations, also would be linked to Spain, Italy and Switzerland in a second regional agreement.

Thus, the French declared, Great Britain was allowed to escape from all eastern European responsibilities, giving Germany a free hand in the east and depriving France of Russian aid, which she already has certified by the Franco-Soviet pact of mutual assistance.

(British sources denied the plan had been officially presented to the French government.)

At the present rate of increase, 200,000 a year, it is estimated Yugoslavia will have a population of 20,000,000 in 1960. In 1931 the population was 13,934,938.

GUARD IS BEHEADED IN RIOTS IN SPAIN

TOTAL CASUALTIES DURING "REVOLT" REACH 200

Madrid, June 13.—(P)—A civil guard was slain and beheaded and four other persons were killed in fresh outbreaks of violence which flared through Spain today.

Their deaths bring to more than 200 the total persons killed since the Leftist election victory of last month.

The civil guard was seized as he walked alone last night in front of Socialist headquarters in Palencia, Cordoba province.

A civilian spectator saw him captured and reported it to civil guard headquarters. A detachment of guards stormed that building.

When they broke through, they found the headless body of the guard lying in the patio of the building.

AREAS WITHOUT RECENT RAINFALL

There are two or three areas in Fayette county which did not share materially in the recent heavy rainfall that reached most of the county.

One of these sections is in the northeastern part of Fayette county, another is a short distance southeast of this city, and another southwest of Washington.

There is still very urgent need of rainfall over the areas which the recent rains did not reach.

HOLLYWOOD—Even beginners in the movie business, as this incident shows, feel like celebrities.

Pedro is a very old man who never has been interested in the movies. But when he heard that a motion picture company was going "on location," 150 miles from Hollywood, he put a pack on his back and went there, too.

The hills where the company was shooting are familiar territory to Pedro, because he had lived there when a boy. Pedro had a vague idea of becoming a technical advisor, or something but he was hired—mostly out of sympathy—as a stand-in for J. Carroll Nash, one of the players. Pedro had walked to his old stamping grounds.

With the same company was an Indian, who had walked 50 miles, carrying a saddle—his remaining possession, he said. He wanted to sell the saddle. But he got a job as an extra.

I met Pedro and talked with him, telling him I might write a piece about him and the Indian who also had walked.

"If you don't mind," said Pedro, "I'd rather have a separate story." (Pedro later announced his intention of becoming an actor.)

Henry Armetta, side-wheeling little Italian comedian of the pictures, is as funny to Hollywood as he is to motion picture audiences.

Directors tell me that Henry ruins more scenes—by making other players with him laugh—than anybody else in town. Henry sputters and shrugs his shoulders and waves his arms while saying his lines. He is a spontaneous comedian and often his dialog is of his own invention.

EDDY SPIKES 'ROMANCE'

Nelson Eddy is telling friends that the "romance" his studio reported between him and Eleanor Powell, the dancing lady, is entirely fictional.

He says that the first time he ever met Eleanor was the day they were photographed together.

In Death Valley, where George O'Brien and a company spent two weeks filming "Border Patrolman," the noon-time temperature often went as high as 135 degrees. Work was halted between 11 and 2, because even the film would melt during those hottest hours. The climate, however, is invigorating, says O'Brien, and no one in the company suffered any illness.

Extradition Approved For Ellis Parker, Sr.

WANTED IN CONNECTION WITH WENDEL CASE

Albany, N. Y.—(P)—Lieut. Gov. M. William Bray as acting governor signed extradition papers Saturday for Ellis Parker Sr., chief of detectives in Burlington county, N. J., who faces charges in Brooklyn growing out of the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation.

Parker, whose home is in Mt. Holly, N. J., was indicted by a Brooklyn grand jury after an investigation of the abduction of Paul Wendel, who later repudiated a confession that he kidnaped the Lindbergh baby.

Girl Accidentally Shot By Rat-Hunting Father

"STUMBLING AND FELL—GUN WENT OFF" HE SAYS

North Jackson, O., June 13.—(P)—Anna Terleski, 15-year-old high school freshman, was fatally wounded today when she was accidentally shot by her father on their farm two miles west of here.

The child died a half hour later at a doctor's office here.

Terleski told deputy sheriffs that he had been shooting rats in the barn with a shotgun.

"I heard somebody shout, 'there's a rat,'" he said. "I ran out of the barn, stumbled on something and fell. The gun went off. I didn't see Anna till she began screaming."

Zioncheck Examination Nears Completion Now

Washington, June 13.—(P)—Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, said today the mental examination of Representative Marion A. Zioncheck "is virtually complete."

Dr. Bocock said he was uncertain whether the report would be ready Monday but he expected a definite announcement "very early next week."

ANTI-NAZI RIOTING FLARES IN DANZIG

HITLER STORM TROOPER IS KILLED DURING CLASH

Free City of Danzig, June 13.—(P)—A Nazi storm trooper was killed and at least 50 other persons were injured today in one of the worst political brawls in Danzig's recent history.

The combatants were representatives of various opposition parties who met under the auspices of the German nationalists in establishing a united front against the Nazis, now the party in power in the Danzig Senate.

However, Nazis obtained admission to the mass meeting and mingled among the 1,000 persons in the audience.

Suddenly fighting broke out. Police restored order by charging into the struggling mass with fixed bayonets.

Defiance Steel Mill Is Ravaged By Flames

400 THROWN OUT OF WORK BY $1,000,000 FIRE.

Defiance, O., June 13.—(P)—Fire destroyed most of the plant of the Defiance Pressed Steel Company today, causing a loss estimated at $1,000,000 and threatened tanks of an oil company containing 40,000 gallons of gasoline.

The company manufactured automobile heaters, steering wheels and other automobile parts and appliances. It employed 400 persons and intended to increase production to capacity next week with a force of 600.

The plant was composed of six one-story brick buildings. All except a small structure were destroyed.

RUMANIA DEFAULTS WAR DEBT TO U. S. TOO

Washington, June 13.—(P)—Rumania today became the fifth nation to default on its June 15 war payment to the United States.

It notified this government that it would be unable to meet the $1,648,750 semi-annual installment due Monday and thus increased the amount it will be in arrears then to $5,492,500.

VETERANS OF FAYETTE COUNTY TO GET BONUS MONDAY MORNING

World War veterans of Fayette county can expect to receive their bonuses sometime Monday morning—that's the word of Emmett Passmore, who, as postmaster, must assume a large share of the responsibility in the distribution.

Passmore said he had received a communication from the Cleveland disbursement headquarters Saturday morning saying the bonuses for Fayette county would be mailed from there at 12:15 a. m. (just after midnight) Monday morning of June 15, the date set long ago as the pay day. They are to arrive in Columbus at 3:40 a. m. and transferred immediately to the west bound E. & O. train scheduled to arrive in Washington C. H. at 5:48 a. m. Monday.

The delivery through Fayette county and the city will be expedited as rapidly as possible, Passmore said, adding the departure of mail carriers will be delayed a little if necessary to get the bonuses on the morning deliveries.

The bonuses, the postmaster reiterated, are to be paid in bonds of $50 denominations with a check for any amount remaining after the maximum number of bonds is allotted.

The checks, Passmore said, are cashable anywhere at any time after the veterans receive them. But, any bonds which are to be "cashed" must go back through the postoffice, he explained. The procedure outlined is: the veteran presents the bonds he wants to "cash" at the postoffice here, identifies himself to authorities there and endorses the bonds. The postoffice forwards the bonds to the Cincinnati office which returns a government check for their value.

In making delivery of the bonus (a package including both bonds and check) the mail carrier is required to make certain of the identity of the recipient and can deliver the bonus only to the veteran to which it is mailed. A receipt is also required and in cases where the mail carrier cannot make the identification personally delivery is to be witnessed by a third party.

Legion officials, through whom the applications were made, estimate approximately 500 veterans in Fayette county will receive a total of about $300,000 from the bonus.

A check-up on the voluntary statements of veterans as to what the veterans intended to do with their bonuses shows a wide variety of purposes ranging from debt payments to investment in property.

Just how much of the $300,000 coming here in the form of bonuses will be put into circulation is conjectural.

Moving Forward

The City Council on Wednesday evening took the first step in a forward movement which may prove to be one of the most progressive ever made in the city's history.

Definite arrangements were made for conducting negotiations for the purchase of the local water works plant which if concluded on advantageous terms will result in wiping out an exceedingly burdensome debt—some twenty-five thousand dollars or more—and in the acquisition by the city of a profit producing utility.

Of course the negotiations are but begun. Scarcely that. Speaking more correctly council has laid the excellent foundation for conducting negotiations for the purchase of the water works plant.

The agreement entered into with the company, which will finance the project if the purchase is finally consummated, is one very favorable, it seems to us, for the city.

Naturally the first step to take in any negotiation to make a purchase is to ascertain what the property purchased is worth to the prospective buyer. That all important fact is to be ascertained by competent and expert engineers who have no purpose other than to get facts. This will be done at no cost to the city.

If, later on, an agreement to purchase should be consummated there will be no danger of the taxpayers of the city ever being called upon to pay any part of the cost. No increase in taxes is possible as a result of the purchase of the plant by the city, if it is made.

Council has acted wisely, as we expected it to do, in making public its negotiations right from the first step.

Heretofore we have not advocated the purchase of the water works plant, when it was suggested, because we did not believe it wise under the old system of government. Now with our present form of government, with a capable city manager and a council composed of business men of proven ability, the purchase of the water works plant seems, if it can be accomplished at a price satisfactory to the present owners and to the city, a wise thing to do.

The Unusual

There were highlights in the political firmament over the Cleveland convention that were unusual—exceedingly unusual.

It was a decidedly unusual occurrence that a president and an ex-president of the United States should be speaking, at the same time on the same subjects Wednesday night.

The coming of the radio made it possible for Americans to sit in the quiet and comfort of their own homes and, by simply turning a button or small knob, listen to each one at intervals. It was easy for one to go by radio, instantly, to Cleveland and listen to former President Hoover's address to the convention and to instantly shift, by radio, to far away Arkansas where President Roosevelt was speaking.

It's all wonderful, but it is yet more wonderful that we accept it all as a matter of course complaining a bit if the elements, perhaps a little rebellious that their domain has been invaded and the barriers of distance with which they have, for long centuries, limited the range of man, interfered.

Another, decidedly unusual development was the ovation given Hoover preceding and following his speech at Cleveland. Considering Hoover's political record it was decidedly unusual that the convention should become so wildly enthused about him that it was necessary to adjourn the session.

It was unusual—decidedly so—for the convention nominee to add a plank to the party platform after the convention had adroitly dodged even the discussion of the advisability of inserting such a plank in the platform.

There were, of course, many other highlights but those mentioned seemed to us as the ones that will be observed and considered by the masses of the people.

CAMPAIGN OF ATTACK LIKELY TO BE POLICY

Cleveland, June 13—The Republicans' campaign policy evidently is to be one of attack upon President Roosevelt's way of running things rather than a fight for any particular constructive program of their own.

This is assuming that Senator Frederick Steiwer, in his keynote speech at the Cleveland convention, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, in his address as the convention's permanent chairman, correctly outlined the G. O. P.'s plans. Presumably they did. Convention Keynoters and permanent chairmen usually know what they are talking about.

Neither Steiwer nor Snell suggested much as to what the Republicans, if they win, propose to do. Both dwelt upon what their party proposes to undo that has been done under the Roosevelt administration.

A DISTINCTION

It was not so much the New Deal that the two G. O. P. spokesmen criticized; it was the Rooseveltian method of doing the dealing.

Steiwer especially said that, at first, he thought rather well of some details of the present White House tenant's general scheme to lift the depression, and support them.

But when the president began putting his system in operation it turned out, the keynoter charged, to be altogether different from what he, or anyone else except a few brain trusters, had expected.

F. D. R. BLAMED

It was Roosevelt personally whom Steiwer and Snell alike blamed for effecting what they described as a very radical change in the American form of government.

To be sure, congress voted to him the authority under which he did it, but congress, as remarked by Steiwer, who admits that he voted for several New Deal measures, had no idea what use he was about to make of the powers it conferred on him. Snell goes so far as to put it that he "seduced the legislative branch by billions in pork barrel patronage."

(Of course, the permanent chairman didn't mean to imply that Steiwer was "seduced." Steiwer simply was deceived. The folk Snell meant to refer to as having been seduced were members of the Democratic majority on Capitol Hill.)

And now, added the chairman, the chief executive "casts a calculating eye upon the judiciary"—the federal supreme court, which has knocked out so much of his legislation as unconstitutional.

A DICTATOR?

Anyway, Steiwer and Snell agreed that Roosevelt is a dictator.

They appealed to the electorate to get rid of him next November, before he becomes too firmly entrenched ever to dislodge, and let a Republican regime restore to the country the form of government it enjoyed until he landed in office.

This can't exactly be called constructive.

It's destructive of what we have now in order to have again what we had formerly.

TURN BACK?

And will we be back where we were originally even if the Republicans do win?

Grant (for the sake of argument) that Roosevelt is a dictator.

It doesn't follow, however, that the folk who overthrow him will be able to re-establish just what existed until he dictated them out of it.

To the contrary, "revolutions never go backward."

So it would be interesting to know what the Republicans plan in the way of reconstruction after they get through with the destructive part of their job—supposing that they succeed at it.

TRAIL BLAZERS

Who Made Ohio History

By R. C. HALL

William Crawford and George Washington became great friends early in their lives. They both served under Braddock in the French and Indian war.

Then Crawford enlisted and served under Washington during the Revolutionary war. Crawford became a colonel and was planning an expedition against the Indian allies of the British near Lake Erie when the war closed.

That is, it closed so far as the British were concerned, but the Indians, particularly the Wyandots, whose chief town was Upper Sandusky, continued their depredations and Colonel Crawford was placed in command of some 400 men and ordered to proceed against them.

Upon reaching the vicinity of Upper Sandusky, the army was attacked and although the men fought bravely and with some success, the Indians were greatly reinforced the following day and succeeded in separating Colonel Crawford from the main force and in capturing him.

Crawford was taken to a spot near Upper Sandusky, where the Indians cut off his ears, shot his body almost full of gun powder and gradually tortured him to death. A small monument has been erected near the spot where Colonel Crawford was burned at the stake.

High Spots In Ohio History

From the Galbraith collection of Ohio Histories. Written for the Associated Press.

The home life of Gov. Jeremiah Morrow was simple and unaffected even after he had assumed the executive office. It was long after his administration that the governors felt it necessary to come to the state capital to perform their duties.

It was because they knew of his simple home-life that the leaders of his party felt that he would be easy to control as to patronage, but he once told them:

"I consider office as belonging to the people. A few of us have no right to make bargains on the subject and I have no bargain to make."

To commemorate the 100th anniversary of Charles Darwin's visit to the Galapagos Islands, Ecuador issued this stamp in 1936.

Poetry For Today

"JENNY KISSED ME"
Jenny kissed me when we met, Jumping from the chair she sat in;
Time, you thief, who love to get Sweets into your list, put that in!
Say I'm weary, say I'm sad,
Say that health and wealth have missed me,
Say I'm growing old, but add,
Jenny kissed me.

WASHINGTON Off the Record

By SIGRID ARNE

Congress has difficulty at times avoiding slang expressions in writing its reports and bills. "White collar projects" has been bothering the purists in the wording of relief bills.

The house appropriations committee decided there was no adequate substitute. So "white collar" went into their draft.

But when the bill landed in the senate appropriations committee, "white collar" offended Senator Alva B. Adams of Colorado who is meticulous about his English. He changed the phrase to "assistance for educational, professional and clerical projects."

Senator Ros McConnell Long, widow of the "Kingfish," requested permission of the senate to place two speeches, one editorial and one letter in the Congressional Record. They were all concerned with the subject of peace.

Governor Alfred Mossman Landon of Kansas descends from an amazing old Scotch-Irish patriarch. Early in colonial days, a James Mossman of England came to America. He was a widower and he left his one son in England. He settled in Massachusetts, remarried and has many descendants.

The son in England grew, and finally the son's grandson, at the age of 90, decided to try America. He gathered up his 10 sons and daughters, their wives and husbands and all their children and brought the tribe to settle in Delaware. The Kansas governor is descended from the Delaware patriarch.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan portrayed for the senate at great and heated length the evils of government spending as he sees them. He said it reminds him of:

"I walked beside an evening sea,
And dreamed a dream that could not be."

When the farm women's convention descended on the White House for tea there were more than 6,000 guests.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt noticed that one eyed her long and silently. Then the woman, as though making up her mind, stepped up to Mrs. Roosevelt and whispered, "What in the world do you do when so many come to tea Can you borrow from the neighbors?"

She was told the White House rents china and glass for the larger receptions.

Both senate and house have rules against the use of profanity on the chamber floors.

So Representative Robert F. Rich of Pennsylvania hesitated a moment to search for an expletive strong enough to use in the heated address he was making. He finally exploded with, "Gracious goodness!"

Eight may not be a favorite number among magicians. But somehow it always works for little Phoebe Omble, the Memphis flier, who is now a member of the national advisory committee on aeronautics.

She was flying over Indianapolis the day of the auto races, so she set her plane down there to find to her surprise a welcoming committee waiting for her. Phoebe does not bet, but her hosts insisted, so she said she'd bet on car No. 8, since her plane always bore that number in the national air contests she has won. Car No. 8 came in first.

"Mollie" Dawson, the woman brain-truster for the Democratic party, recently won a tennis championship. She's 53.

"Just goes to show," she commented, "that political oratory hasn't taken all my wind."

Representative Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan was one of the Congressmen who declared himself against the Townsend plan. He told other house members his stand had caused him to be deluged with mail. He read one of the letters. It said in part:

KANSAS IN THE SADDLE!

"You saps better look in glass and see if you see some green grass sprouting as you are all going to have a green place 2 by 6 and before many months unless you get doing something for the people. K. K. K. Member."

By JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—Russian princesses are not at all uncommon in Manhattan but there is none like Princess Alexandra Kiashkin.

She sits in her apartment at the St. Moritz, looks out on the tumbled green of Central Park, shakes her head very slowly and says: "So this is New York. . . I don't like it."

The princess has been here four days and unless she changes her mind, she will not stay four days more. She will go on with her world jaunt and back to Shanghai where she is owner, publisher and one of the chief writers of the Russian Daily News . . . circulation 10,000.

It's the princess's first trip to America. The reasons she does not like it are that "everything is too dear" and "the people . . . especially the men . . . are too rough." Which is the Kiashkin way of saying that prices are too high and the people are crude.

As for prices the princess pays her maid in Shanghai $5 a month, her cook $8 a month. She can buy fine dresses there for $15 gold.

Because of the exchange she finds that her meals here cost $12 to $15 "in our money," which is the Mexican dollar.

Last night she took a taxi to the theater. It cost her 95 cents one way and only 50 cents returning. She cannot understand such business. She took a walk and a man followed her. She stopped later at a sidewalk cafe, and a perfect stranger spoke to her.

In Shanghai, there are kidnappings daily, and unless the family of the victim pays the demanded sum, a finger or an ear of said victim is sent along as a reminder that they had better hurry. . . . And all the wealthy Chinese men have bodyguards. . . . But that is only a little affair among the Chinese. . . . And foreigners are not molested. . . . And men, foreign or native, who are perfect strangers never follow or speak to ladies.

Then, too, coming over on the boat, there was a prominent moving picture star. . . . A man who is popular in Shanghai. Her editor, Bazel Chelcin, cabled her to get his picture. For three days, he was too drunk to be photographed and in three days he was convinced that he was a drunkard and decided she did not want his picture. There are drunkards in Shanghai of course. . . . But not Chinese. In 20 years in China, the princess has never seen a Chinese man drunk. . . . It would be a disgrace. . . . Like not paying one's debts on New Year's eve.

Princess Kiashkin was born in Poland, but her family returned to Russia almost immediately and four years later, before the revolution, left for Harbin. She went to school in Harbin, learned English there, and Chinese. In 1930, at the age of 19, she was general manager of the largest hotel in Nanking. She has always worked. . . . And at many things. . . . She likes her newspaper. . . . But she does not like to write. . . . She thinks, perhaps, she is too lazy to write.

Dinner Stories

SOMEBODY'S DOING IT!

At the end of the second round in a boxing bout, the "Battling Kid" staggered to his corner badly bruised by his opponent's blows. The "Kid's" optimistic manager leaned over the ropes while the boxer was resting and shouted in his ear: "Keep it up, Kid, he hasn't laid a glove on you yet."

The manager repeated the cheerful advice at the end of the third and fourth rounds although the youthful fighter looked worse after each encounter.

When the bell sounded the end of the fifth round, the boxer had to be helped to his corner. He looked wearily at his manager as he mumbled: "Don't tell me. I know he ain't laid a glove on me, but you better have someone watch the referee because someone in that ring is giving me an awful beating."

JIMMY BRADDOCK IS SAME GOOD GUY AS CHAMPION HE WAS AS RELIEFER

Forget Your Fairy Tales—The Story of James J. Braddock Has 'Em All Beat a Mile for Drama

New York, June 13.—(AP)—He's been heavyweight champion of the world for exactly one year and he's still the same old jimmy Braddock.

You couldn't say that about many guys, surely. But the affable, well-fed, well-dressed Irishman who wrings your hand today otherwise is the same undernourished, worried and discouraged fellow who went into the ring with Max Baer one year ago tonight so that he could pay the milk bill. Forget about your fairy tales. The story of James J. Braddock has 'em all beat a mile.

Two years ago, mind you, he was on the relief rolls. He work-

9TH IN A ROW WON BY CHICAGO CUBS

And Baseballdom Thinks Last Year's Landslide May Be Duplicated

BUT CARDS HOLD LEAD

Yankees Pull Away to 3 Games in Front

By SID FEDDER

The question that had the entire baseball world going around in circles last September is playing a return engagement much earlier this year.

Along baseball boulevard wherever you go, they're firing the query from all sides these days—when and where are those clouting Chicago Cubs going to stop?

With a winning streak that is already extended to nine games, the Cubs are in a large way on the road to duplicating that 21-game Chicago landslide of September 1935.

A lot of angles make this year's pell-mell dash more favorable from the viewpoint of the windy city, principally because the first three months of last year were virtually a flop so far as the Cubs were concerned.

They were getting neither pitching or hitting those days. Now they're getting both. They had less than a month to get anywhere when they finally started winning ball games regularly in 1935. Now they're in the thick of things, with more than half the campaign still ahead.

They made it nine in a row yesterday by piling up their biggest score of the season, 17-1, over the Boston Bees, as Tex Carleton pitched eight-hit ball, the ninth straight time a Cub hurler has gone the route.

The victory did not reduce the 3½ game lead of the first place Cards, since the Gas House Gang nosed out the Phils 32 in the 11th on the strength of Rip Collins homer. The Pirates, who are just back of the Cubs, won their sixth straight with a 3-2 margin over the New York Giants, as Bill Swift handed Carl Hubbell his first loss in six starts. The Dodgers and Reds were idle.

The Yankees stretched their American Tigers, 6-3, while the second-place Red Sox were rained out. The set-back dropped the world's champions from third to fifth, moving—the idle Cleveland Indians to third, while the Senators, behind Buck Newsom's rivet, shutout hurling, came up to fourth with a 6-0 edge over the White Sox.

LOUISVILLE'S COLONELS STILL CLUB MOST FEARED BY UPPER TIER TEAMS

Chicago, June 13.—(AP)—Skipper Burleigh Grimes and his swash-buckling crew of Louisville Colonels may be in the American Associations second division but right now they're the most feared outfit in the circuit.

The Colonels ripped through the Association with a vengeance during the past week. Here's the wreckage they left behind: On Sunday, took a double bill from the Milwaukee Brewers; on Monday, beat the Kansas City Blues in 10 innings; Tuesday, beat Kansas City again and then dropped a game to the Blues Wednesday; got under way on Thursday to trip the Minneapolis Millers, and stopped the champions again yesterday, 6 to 5.

A ninth inning rally gave Louisville the game.

Indianapolis beat St. Paul 9 to 0 in one of the three night games, the Saints getting only six hits off Turner as the Indians combed two Saints' twirlers for 19 safeties.

Kansas City walloped Toledo 12 to 3, the Blues getting 17 hits as Shores held the Hens to but nine. The victory enabled the Blues to tie the Milwaukee for the circuit lead as the Brewers were beaten 9 to 6 by Columbus.

BOSTON STRONG MAN FLOPS CADDOCK IN CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, O., June 13.—(AP)—George Dusette, Boston strong man, was returned winner over John (Babe) Caddock of Tampa, Fla., in the one fall feature attraction of a wrestling show last night at Parkway Arena.

Caddock, who had not lost a bout in 13 starts here, applied his favorable bone-crusher, a variation of the stepover toe hold, and turned on the pressure. Instead of surrendering, Dusette countered with a reverse wristlock, and won the match in 27 minutes. He weighed 175, Caddock 173.

ed as a laborer on the Hoboken docks, when he could.

They wanted a soft touch for Corn Griffin. Braddock went into the ring on one day's notice. Hungry and weak, he was floored in the first round. But he came back to flatten Griffin, then a real heavyweight prospect.

Braddock got $250 for that. Then they wanted a sacrifice for John Henry Lewis, new light heavyweight champion. Braddock took it and beat Lewis. They tossed him $750, as if they were doing him a favor, which they were.

Then it was decided Art Lasky needed building up. Braddock's smart little manager, Joe Gould, sure his man was on the upgrade again, asked for the fight. Everyone laughed. Gould guaranteed Lasky $5,000 and took a gamble.

Braddock cooked Lasky's goose and collected around $5,000 himself—the first good money he had made since he was one of the leading light heavies ten years ago.

The first thing he did was repay the New Jersey Relief Society the $350 he had been advanced while he was in financial distress. Baer and the title came next. Never has so much dope been spilled as the Cinderella man overturned in the big bowl in Long Island city a year ago tonight.

From Waco he went on to Albany, Ga., and then to the Phillies in 1928. Back to Waco and in the Brownie camp in 1930. No go there, so he again went to Waco. EDDIE ANDERSON TO HEAD MOOSE LODGE FIGHT CARD

BOXING COMES BACK TO WASHINGTON C. H. WEDNESDAY, JUNE 17 AT MOOSE LODGE—THREE OTHER BOUTS AND BATTLE ROYAL ALSO PLANNED

Eddie Anderson, blond scrapper who used to toss handfuls of leather with reckless abandon at opponents in the Army ring here not so long ago, will make another stand in a Washington C. H. ring when he headlines the card sponsored by the Royal Order of Moose, to be given at their hall on Fayette street Wednesday night.

Eddie always gave Washington C. H. fans and fanettes a treat with his toe-toe slugging and his aggressive form of fighting. He appeared in bouts at the Army with Al George, Billy Losita, Al Schwartz, "Bad Boy" Harper, Cowboy Guerry and others.

Eddie has been matched for Wednesday night with Bobby Stewart, 136, of Dayton, in the eight-round final of the program.

Stewart, Dayton's lightweight champ, claims the undisputed colored championship of the state, it is understood. From his manager, Earl McWilliams, who pilots Alabama Kid, it is found that Stewart has been a sparring partner to both Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri. The clever milt tosser has turned in recent wins over Tommy Merritt, Chick Wagner, and Jesus Valpariso, Cuban flash it is understood.

For the preliminary four heat bout of the evening Chuck Foster, of Bloomington, is slated to tangle with Max Mace of Jeffersonville. Both boys hit the scales at 160. Another prelim will be carded between two local lads.

A battle royal is slated to open the evening's program and will be featured by boys 18 to 25 years of age from Washington C. H., Bloomington, and Jeffersonville.

Tut Jackson, local boxing time-

Shifty Dan-do, the crack lightweight who fought in practically every Ohio town during his prime a decade ago, died in Indianapolis a few days ago, and was buried in Pittsburgh, his birthplace . . . more than 400 horses are awaiting the lifting of the barrier Saturday for the opening of the 3-day race meeting at Akron's Northampton track . . . if you want to see Jesse Owens in action this year you'll have to witness the Ohio-Southern California dual meet Saturday, or go to the Olympics . . . it's his last appearance on the home clinders this summer.

TIGERS DOWN REDS IN MORNING LEAGUE

CARDS, HOWEVER, LEAD LOOP BY MERIT OF SINGLE VICTORY OVER TIGERS

The Tigers managed an 8 to 3 victory over the Reds Friday morning in the Recreation Program, hardball league in the second game of the circuit.

Thursday's tilt between the Giants and Pirates was rained out. The roster of the squads playing Friday was: Tigers—Forbis, Brown, Huff, Miller, Backenstoe, D. Brown, Reveal, Durnell, Sexton, Bennett, Adridge, Reese, and Stanforth.

Reds—Wilson, Witherspoon, Evans, Hyer, Sanders, E. Stanforth, Thomas, B. Reese, Merz, Martin, Wyatt, Crouse, and Marks.

First Anniversary of Championship Victory Finds Family in Same Modest Jersey Apartment

Now he's the champ, but he's the same old Jimmy Braddock. His popularity has increased by leaps and bounds. Plenty of steaks have increased the size of his collar and the size of his belt, but he still wears the same size hats.

His family still lives in the modest little New Jersey apartment it occupied during the days when the milk man was the No. 1 problem. The Braddocks have moved from the back of the house to the front—that's all.

His big chance will come if and when he meets Joe Louis this fall. Then he is assured the champion's share of what probably will be a million dollar gate.

Sport Slants

By CHARLES GRUMICH

Napanoch, N. Y.—If you had the physique to survive the punishment Joe Louis can deliver in short order, would you enter the ring with him for $500,000?

Max Schmeling is going to, protesting all the while that it isn't the money so much but the principle of the thing that impels him to face the Brown Bomber on June 18.

The comeback bug bit Der Maxie in a vulnerable spot and here he is, putting up a bold front and stating he has a chance against the man who demolished the same Max Baer who kayaked Schmeling.

The $300,000 Schmeling will get for becoming Louis' victim No. 28 is acceptable, of course, but it is hardly needed in the Schmeling ménage, for Maxie has gathered a lot of gold in a fistie career that somehow lacks the stamp of greatness. A large chunk of the earnings is safely cached away.

And so you have to accept the statement that Schmeling, at the age of 30 years plus that he has a chance to regain the pugilistic heights which he occupied for a brief tenure as a result of a foul blow struck by Jack Sharkey in 1930.

SCHMELING DISAGREES
Maxie won't believe in the time-tested axiom of the ring—"They never come back." At least he's making a pretty good show of courage now, and none ever rightfully accused Schmeling of lacking courage.

Schmeling partisans—and there really are a few in these parts where Max is living a hermit's life and training for Louis—insist the Brown Bomber got where he is today over the prostrate forms of a flock of hasbeens and novices.

In his major engagements, they point out, he put away off-defeated Primo Carnera in the sixth, Punching-bag Levinsky in the first, Play-boy Max Baer and old Paulino Uzcudun each in the fourth. When Louis plastered Baer, Baer had lost the heavyweight crown to Jim Braddock who had been licked innumerable times.

Schmeling men tell you Louis didn't have to meet any Sharkeys, Striplings or Mickey Walkers in his rise to the top.

The ranks of the heavyweights are thinner now than they were in the Schmeling hey-day, and Louis actually lacks first class competition, as witness the upcoming bout with Schmeling!

LOUIS 'HAS EDGE'

In comparing the results of matches with the two men whom both Louis and Schmeling fought the edge goes to the Bomber. In his meteoric rise through the ranks, Joe belted out both Baer and Uzcudun. Turn back to 1933, and you discover that the same Baer won over Schmeling on a technical knockout in the tenth—with what some experts regarded as a lucky punch after Schmeling had piled up a lead.

Back in 1929, Schmeling went 15 rounds to take a decision over poor Paulino. In 1934 at Barcelona, Spain, where anything can happen to a foreign fighter, they called a Schmeling-Uzcudun bout a draw, although sports writers gave it to Max. In his own homeland, Max was given a 12-round decision over Paulino last year. Schmeling also squared accounts in 1935 with Steve Hamas, knocking him out at Hamburg, Germany, in the ninth, after having dropped a decision to him in 12 rounds the previous year.

After winning the title on Sharkey's foul in 1930 Schmeling successfully defended against the late Young Stripling in 1931 and kayned little Mickey Walker in 1932, the same year Max lost the crown to Sharkey.

"They never come back"—but Schmeling ought to last two or three rounds, anyway, against Joe Louis.

Chinese Divorces Herald Women's New Freedom

Nanking (AP)—Champions of women's rights see in the increase in Chinese divorces the dawn of a new era of freedom for the weaker sex in a land where, from earliest times marriage has been a "life sentence."

A direct result of the modernization of China, most of the 448 divorces granted by Chinese courts last year were for residents of the coastal provinces, where foreign influence has been strongest.

The figures give further evidence of the revolt against the old order of matrimony which forced young couples to live with and be subservient to parents, for third on the list of causes of divorce is "maltreatment by relatives." Maltreatment and desertion led the list.

CHAPTER 43

VAN EVERY at his own suggestion walked to the elevator with me. "Have you seen Mrs. Bryce lately?" I asked, pausing before we reached the lift.

"I'm going to her place for dinner tonight."

"You don't think it possible that she has a key to your house?" No suspicion must enter his mind yet, as to what I knew.

"No, she hasn't. She's a fine woman, Maughan, and I wish you and Keyes hadn't gone to see her that day—she was terribly upset about it."

So she had told him! "Keyes insisted. I told him he was wrong, but he wouldn't listen. Why don't you marry her?" I felt I could presume on his friendship to ask that.

Van Every's hands played aimlessly with his watch chain. He hesitated before he answered. "I'm too selfish. She is content, and so am I. I can talk to you frankly, although I would not discuss personal matters with anyone else. You understand?" "Surely," I felt that he was going to say more, so I lingered there beside him while the elevator came and went.

"Mrs. Bryce is a charming woman, but now Joyce is a woman, too. I have never wanted Joyce to know of Mrs. Bryce—for my own reasons. I could not bear to have Joyce think—well, you understand that, too."

"I'm sure that Joyce is modern," I said, "and she would think nothing of your association with Mrs. Bryce. She probably would be very glad you are happy."

"Perhaps, but I am old-fashioned enough to think differently. Joyce worships me. I am all that is good to her."

"Maybe you're right," I hadn't realized that deep down Van Every was narrow minded after all. His affection, his love for his niece was apparent, but his sacrifice seemed useless to me. "Isn't Mrs. Bryce interested in Joyce?"

"Yes, she always asks me about her, and I confide everything in her. I have to confide in someone. I don't know how a girl should be brought up. It was Edith who suggested a person of Miss Randall's type as a companion for Joyce. Edith, who investigated the schools which Joyce attended. Edith who chose the gifts I gave Joyce. Edith who told me it would be best to let Joyce marry early—I was violently opposed to it at first, the engagement I mean. In fact, it was Edith who, five years ago, decided Joyce should have a year in Italy in her formative years. That's why we went. The trip benefited Joyce immensely. I'm eternally grateful to Edith."

"It does seem a shame, after all that you've never let them meet. I imagine Joyce would like Mrs. Bryce very much," I murmured lamely.

"Oh, Edith is an entirely different type than Joyce. Edith is old-fashioned like me. She doesn't understand these modern girls. That's why I take everything to her. I have to take it to someone. Joyce is beyond me."

"You worry about her too much," I insisted.

"You can't worry about a girl too much these days. Times have changed. Wait until you have a head-strong youngster on your hands flying around with dozens and dozens of men, dancing half the night, and morning, smoking, drinking—Joyce doesn't like liquor, thank heaven!—full of crazy whims, wanting the moon and getting it half the time. Wait until you have a girl like that, and see if you know what to do. My responsibility is double, you know. Joyce is not my daughter, yet I love her more than I would my own child. But not being my child, I feel I must do more than I would for my own—make a greater effort."

"Don't you think Mrs. Bryce is jealous of Joyce?"

"Van Every glanced at me sharply. "Of course not. I've accused her of it, but I know she is not. I'm positive of that."

After a few more inconsequential remarks I took the elevator, and from the hotel hurried as fast as I could to Keyes' office. By luck he was in, in fact had just arrived and was taking off his overcoat.

A man was with him, and as soon as he was dismissed, I plunged quickly into the new theory I had evolved, telling him in detail the story of the needle in Van Every's door, which he knew, but listened to patiently, and my subsequent visit to Grubbs; Mrs. Bryce's purse, her confused exit, everything.

"Good work," he praised when I finished. "It looks, Maughan, as if we have found the murderer. I'm afraid if I had been there I would have been hasty, arrested Mrs. Bryce, and opened her purse to see whether the gun was there."

"The purse was heavy," I repeated. After this I told the present arrangements—Joyce in the suite of rooms, her new companion, and my conversation with Van Every about Edith Bryce.

"Any luck about Ward?" Keyes asked.

"Van Every does not know where he is. I'm sure of that. He was very much disturbed that you even connected Ward with the murders."

"Don't worry, I'll have him soon. He can't get away from me. I've his description every place, and the man still has his prison hair cut."

"Gonzales?"

"Oh, yes; I was about to tell you—wait a minute. I had a stenographer take down the questions and answers. Before you read it, let me tell you that my men found Gonzales asleep at the hotel, and when I questioned him he started out being very cocky. I soon took that out of him. He's in jail now, on suspicion, of course."

He handed me a bunch of papers, which I took, while he gave orders over the telephone recalling the detective who had been shadowing Mrs. Bryce, and sending another in his place—two, in fact.

The paper I held in my hand was a long list of questions, Keyes the interrogator, Gonzales the victim. I will give it in its entirety, having since secured a copy from the captain.

Q. Your alibi for Monday night is not satisfactory, Gonzales. You lied to me when you said you were in Washington. You were here in New York City! Why did you lie?

A. I did not lie. I was in Washington—you have only to go there and see.

Q. I told you I had already investigated, and found your alibi false. What have you to say to that?

A. Nothing. I was in Washington.

Q. Roy Barrimore saw you and spoke to you Monday night.

A. Roy Barrimore is dead.

Q. I had a confession from him on his deathbed.

A. He talked, then? What did he say?

Q. It matters not what he said. Were you in New York City or not?

A. I was in Washington. Barrimore must have seen my brother. We look very much alike.

Q. How much money did Margalo Younger give you for the ruby you sold her as the Camden ruby?

A. I know nothing about the Camden ruby.

Q. You saw it the other day in this office.

A. For the first time.

Q. Miss Younger confessed to Roy Barrimore that you sold her the ruby. Is this true?

A. It is not. I had never seen the ruby before.

'NEW DIPLOMACY' FOR FRANCE PLANS TO DISARM DICTATORS

By CHARLES FOLTZ

Paris (AP)—Paul Faure, organizing genius of French socialism, has outlined a "new diplomacy" which politicians believe may be the foreign policy of Leon Blum's new government.

Faure, general secretary of the socialist party, has been considered for posts in the cabinet exclusive of the foreign ministry, but his power in socialist circles is such that his opinion carries much weight.

Under Faure's scheme the first step would be to propose reduction of arms with a view toward "total disarmament."

Sees Warfare Stopped
"After having offered disarmament and peace to all nations," Faure wrote in "Populaire," the party organ, "the next step is to study the replies of states, fascist or otherwise, which refuse to listen to reason."

"If France, England, Russia, Sweden and Spain wish to do so, they could prevent any Mussolini or any Hitler from undertaking a war, simply by depriving them of iron ore, manganese and bauxite."

Faure was convinced that Russia and Spain would agree to such action and he believed that England and Sweden, might be persuaded to join.

Through statistics he endeavored to show that the five nations produced most of the world's iron ore, manganese and bauxite, the latter an ore from which aluminum is

Asks Peace Lovers' Approval

Without these raw materials, he said, modern warfare would be an impossibility.

"We expect to place the most generous idealism in the service of peace," Faure continued, "but at the same time we take into account the realities of science."

"Evidently such a plan will make the pretentious aristocrats, whom the republic has made the mistake of putting in the embassies, smile widely. But all those who put the peace of the world above everything else will understand and approve of our ideas."

The author of this plan has been credited with rebuilding the socialist party after it split in 1920. He comes from the Perigord region in south-western France and admits that he, like his father, was a rightist—"when young."

Now, however, Faure is a tireless speaker and indefatigable worker for the political party he believes will "save France and the world."

Philippine Gold Seen Doubling

Manila (AP)—The prediction that Philippine gold mines will turn out $40,000,000 worth of the precious metal in 1936 is made by J. H. Marsman, president of a large mining company and a member of the Philippine National Economic Council. Marsman expects gold production in the islands to more than double by 1946.

Paris Billboard Taxes Ground All Sky-writers

Paris (AP)—Sky-writers do no sky-writing over Paris. Under city laws it costs 90 francs a month per square yard to plaster posters on billboards, walls or fences.

Through a strange quirk in the old laws that rate also applies to sky-writing. Flying at the legal height a good aviator could cram the word "OK PARIS" into about 250,000 square yards.

Since the minimum payment on a poster is a month, those seven letters would cost about 31,500,000 francs or, roughly $2,205,000.
